

Brave New Media World

By Richard S. Towne, KUNM General Manager

Updating Satellite Radio Merger: On July 25, the FCC approved the merger of the two satellite radio companies Sirius and XM Radio. The vote was 3-2, along party lines. Public radio advocates at the merger hearings requested a twenty five percent “set aside” of channels dedicated to public service and minority programming. The FCC requested that eight percent of channels be set aside for such services.

Unlike “over-the-air” radio, applications for channels are not reviewed and approved as licensed facilities by the FCC. We’ll just have to trust the newly merged satellite radio monopoly will actually commit to an eight percent level of public service. For now, the company won’t be forced to include digital FM radio receivers in their consumer equipment.

The FCC may conduct a public hearing and public comment opportunity on the digital FM issue in the next 30-days. My sense is that internet radio (and other internet-based audio content) serving hand-held devices like Ipods and iPhones will capture the consumer market, leaving little left for satellite radio’s survival.

Listening Online: Jupiter Research has a June 2008 survey out; of the 2,000 U.S. internet users surveyed, 23% listen to audio on the web. Of that same group, 26% own Ipods. KUNM welcomes you to listen from our site as well. I’ve heard from some KUNM listeners who don’t have radios at work that listening to KUNM on the internet has been a real saving grace.

With elections only 60 days away, I can promise you that the advertising and commercial media “noise” level will be approaching the threshold of pain. You don’t have to holler at your TV or AM radio station. There is something different here. Outside of our award-winning news, KUNM’s music programs can be the soothing and thrilling crosswalk when you get to the intersection of Politics as Usual Boulevard and Stupidity Street. If you want to log on and listen to KUNM but have a boss who won’t allow listening at work, you’ll need to get a different boss. For goodness sakes, listening to Freeform actually whitens your teeth. What could be so wrong about that?

Place-Shifting: A Dublin, Ireland research firm called ResearchandMarkets.com has an interesting thought I want to share. The report is Bending the Rules of Time and Space: Trends and Analysis of Place Shifted Media by The Diffusion Group, January 2008.

“Today’s consumers demand more than just varied content. They want it on their terms, on their schedules. Remember your first VCR and the worlds it opened? Get ready for the next radical notion. Unshackling your TV from the living room, you are now able to transport your media to where and when you want it. In other words, place shifting enables the transport of one’s media to whichever corner of the globe one may happen to be.

“In theory, “place-shifting” does for location what “time-shifting” has done for scheduling. Placeshifting can be defined as watching or listening to live, recorded or stored media on a remote device via the internet or over a data network.

“Consumers are already struggling to make sense of the standard array of programmed media available to them today; now add to this the tsunami of Internet-based content, personal video recorder-stored content, and on-demand content and one can imagine the sense of confusion that ordinary consumers will encounter. Great, I’ve got 3,000 “channels” - now how do I make sense of all this? Since place shifting allows consumers to be entertained during other “wasted” time the author believes it could herald an expansion of consumer entertainment time.”

Well, yes... you can listen to KUNM anywhere on your Iphone. Sounds like the world is starting to catch up with your original “place-shifter.” It’s called the transistor radio. Thanks for letting KUNM serve your media interests. ☺

Will You Be 1 of the Lucky 13?

by Mary Oishi, Development Director

BEFORE the April 2008 Fundraiser, I was making calls and sending emails to start looking for great prizes to offer to you and the rest of the KUNM listeners during the Fall 2008 Fundraiser coming up in October.

In fact, I keep my ears and eyes open year ‘round to locate prizes that I would love to win myself. One evening I was at a dinner hosted by Amy Turner of Zip It Advertising, and had the pleasure of meeting Kevin Burgess and Drew Coduti of B.C. Designs in Albuquerque. They were seated across the table from me, and in the course of our conversation I learned that they were artisans of the finest order, having designed the special chandelier in UNM’s newly renovated Scholes Hall, and having accompanied the Albuquerque Convention and Visitors Bureau out of state to demonstrate New Mexico traditional tin working. I checked out their website www.b-c-designs.com the very next time I got on my computer. That did it for me. I knew I had to convince them to donate one of their beautiful creations for you.

By the time they decided to participate, it was too late for the Spring pledge drive. So their donation will be the Daily Prize on Thursday, October 23rd. It is a magnificent 20” x 56” mirror, designed with tin and copper trim, plus 8 pieces of turquoise. If you were to purchase this one-of-a-kind accent for your home or office, it would cost $600.

Then I found out that Seventh Generation, according to their website one of the country’s first self-declared “socially responsible” companies, offered another public radio station a year’s supply of product that they would ship directly to one of their lucky listeners. I immediately contacted Seventh Generation to see if they would do the same thing for a lucky KUNM listener.

Fortunately, they were willing. So, everyone who mails in, calls in, or registers on-line before 10 pm on Friday, October 24th, will be in the drawing to win a year’s supply of non-toxic, environmentally-safe household products. This prize, valued at $581.50, includes two cases of bathroom tissue, two cases of paper towels, one case of all purpose cleaner, one case of glass cleaner, one case of tub & tile cleaner, two cases of liquid laundry detergent, one case of dish soap, one case of automatic dishwashing liquid, and one case of kitchen garbage bags.

Another winner will be luxuriously pampered, or else will have all the holiday gifts he or she needs (perhaps a combination of both), when the phone rings early Thursday morning and the KUNM staffer at the other end says, “You’ve won the Spa Package from Betty’s Bath and Day Spa!”

I’ll detail the products it includes, but first, just the five gift certificates in this gift basket will make you say “Ahhhhhhhh!” Imagine, two gift certificates for individual 60-minute Betty’s Blissful Massages, their signature massage combining Swedish, acupressure, and therapeutic techniques using a blend of warm essential oil specifically combined to relax and smooth away stress. (Betty’s massage therapists have earned the reputation as the Best in ‘Burque).

Then there’s one Gift Certificate for a 30-minute Herbal Aromatherapy Wrap and a 30-minute Salt Glow. During the Herbal Aromatherapy Wrap, the body is comfortably wrapped in warm linens that have been steeped in seasonal herbs. As the body relaxes in the wrap the scalp and feet are massaged with heated essential oil. This wrap is designed to draw out toxins and relax muscles. The Salt Glow that follows uses a mixture of sea salt and heated essential oils to slough away dead skin and moisturize the body. Again, “Ahhhhhhhh!”

Last, but certainly not least, the winner receives two Gift Certificates for 60-minute Betty’s Blissful Facials, using all-natural botanic based products. Betty’s Blissful Facial is designed to nourish, cleanse and purify the skin. Each treatment includes a steam, exfoliation, facial massage and mask specifically suited to skin type.

The gift certificates in this prize are worth $390. But that’s not everything. The $194 worth of products from Betty’s Bath & Day Spa’s Luxury Boutique include Betty’s Blissful Lotion, Betty’s Blissful Massage Oil, Feet Treat (Shea Butter Foot Balm), and two Betty’s Blissful Robes, 100% cotton waffle weave robes—all Betty’s Blissful Bath & Body Line Products

As if that weren’t enough, it also includes one Lavender

Hand Cream, one Lavender Eye Pillow (a 100% organic cotton covering stuffed with organic lavender flowers) and one Om Candle, an eco-friendly locally-made soy candle.

Another local business, Celebro Natural Living (formerly Celebro Natural Clothing), donated wonderful prizes for the opening day of our fundraiser: a stunning coral and silver toggle-clasp bracelet with matching coral pendant and earrings, valued at $459. Anyone who knows me well knows that I have a real fondness for jewelry. I must admit, I picked this out and asked the owner of Celebro if she would consider donating this set to us. (In my judgment, it was the most striking piece of jewelry in the store, but I figured, why not ask for the best for KUNM listeners?) I was thrilled when she said yes, and I'll be thrilled for you if this is the prize you win. Three lucky runners-up will receive a $150 gift certificate which can be used for anything in the store. Celebro Natural Living carries natural fiber clothing for women and men, and they've added a substantial kids section, as well as fairly traded home furnishings.

Whoever wins Tuesday's prize can celebrate their next birthday or special occasion in high style—and with good conscience. Seasons Rotisserie & Grill in Albuquerque's Old Town has donated a $590 dinner for six. But it's not "jus' any ole dinner" from the menu. This is a four course custom-designed dinner featuring organic locally grown seasonal produce and hormone-free, grass fed beef paired with bio-dynamically produced wines. And if you and/or your guests are vegetarians, they will accommodate that as well. Cheers!

Over the years KUNM listeners have heard announcements from the Albuquerque-based non-profit, Peacecraft, announcements that end with "Shop with a conscience at Peacecraft." They travel the world searching for cooperative-made and artisan-made goods and pay the makers a fair price. This time they donated one of those pieces, a whimsical and engaging story tapestry from Kala Raksha in India. Entitled "Vandhiyo," it is a 33" x 54" appliqué and embroidery on cotton depiction of a Vandhiyo, a camp set up by the nomadic Rabaris, a herding people of India. Valuben Depa, the artist, tells the entire story on the tag that accompanies her wonderful fabric art piece: "We are herding people. When we wander we set up camps, and these are called vandhiya. This is a picture of what it is like in the vandhio. It is morning, the sun is just rising. We set up a hearth. All of our kitchen equipment is there. The vegetable is already made and now we are making rotis.

Now the men are taking the camels out. A boy is riding one. Depabhai is taking our camels to graze.

A little later, we pack our other camel with our belongings and set out for the next vandhiyo. Near the road there are trees. There are some camels there, munching the leaves. There is a well and a trough especially built for herders' animals. The camels are drinking water. On the way, we see all walks of life. Bhujpur is on the way. I have shown the Bhujpur station. I have shown some Charan women in red. They are carrying milk to sell. We live our life on the road like this."

If you are the lucky winner, you will see that the enjoyment and cultural value of this work is far beyond its $250 retail price tag. If you are one of two runner-up winners on Sunday, you will receive a $100 gift certificate from Peacecraft, so you can have a global shopping experience—with a conscience—right here at home, in Albuquerque's historic Nob Hill.

While in Nob Hill, you may want to check out the Japanese-style stark beauty of Bright Future Futon Company. They, along with Sachi Organics, their sister store in Santa Fe, donated a lovely sofa bed frame and futon. The Hampton model is a solid hardwood frame crafted by Norka Woodworks with sustainably harvested ash from Pennsylvania, my home state. It comes with a conventional cotton/foam futon, or a $275 credit toward an organic cotton/latex futon made by Sachi Organics, if you prefer). The retail value of this beautifully styled sofa bed futon is $715.

Then, of course, there's the Grand Prize of the scooter, which you can see on page 6, in person at the KUNM booth at Globalquerque and the Solar Fiesta this month, and in color on the flyer that you will get when your survey arrives in the mail.

Keep your eyes open for the survey. Send yours back with your entry—and get it back to us as soon as you can, but definitely before October 17th, so you're sure to have your name in the drawing for EVERY one of these 13 great prizes. Tell your family members and friends to enter too. If they're not already members they can call in during the pledge drive to 277-HELP or toll-free 866-899-5866, or they can register and/or pledge on-line at www.kunm.org. That's all they, or you, or anyone needs to do to enter and get 13 chances to win one of over $5848 worth of great prizes. The best of luck to you!

Friday, September 5

8 a.m. University Showcase. UNM in the 21st Century: A New President's Vision. Our guest will be Dr. David J. Schmidly, the 20th President of the University of New Mexico. Dr. Schmidly began his leadership role at UNM in June 2007 and was formally installed on October 7, 2007. Currently, he has challenged the University community to embrace a strategic framework for the future of the University and link it with a new campus master plan that will allow real progress on the University's most important priorities. These priorities, as explained by Dr. Schmidly, include: teaching, research, medical patient care and community service. Jane Blume also asks President Schmidly to discuss plans for energy conservation at the University, for forming a UNM campus in Rio Rancho and encouraging returning veterans to attend the campuses of the University. Hosted by Jane Blume. Produced by Dick Frederiksen.

6 a.m. New Dimensions. "A Simple Buddhist Monk" with Pico Iyer. When Pico Iyer was just seventeen he met the Dalai Lama for the first time, an experience that impacted the rest of his life. Now this Oxford scholar has turned that early fascination into an in-depth study of the inner and outer life of one of the world's great spiritual leaders. In this interview he shares details of the Dalai Lama's daily routine, his humor, and the reasons why he really is "just a simple Buddhist monk." Mr. Iyer paints a picture of a man of great paradox, a meticulous scholar with deep humility as well as great political insight, with a self-proclaimed addiction to BBC World News and an all-encompassing love and respect for animals. He identifies the qualities that make the Dalai Lama one of the most beloved teachers of our time when he says, "He speaks at many different levels, according to the levels of his listeners, so a little child will hear one thing and a sophisticated philosopher will hear another. At every point he cuts to the root of things, and doesn't allow himself to really be diverted by the never ending drama of change and the roller coaster of moment by moment sensations. That's one of the great things he brings to the world."

Sunday, September 7

11 a.m. Peace Talks Radio. 9/11 Families for Peaceful Tomorrows. As the anniversary of the September 11th terrorist attacks on the U.S. approaches, Peace Talks Radio checks in with members of the organization "9/11 Families for Peaceful Tomorrows," founded by family members of those killed on September 11th. We'll hear from people who have united to turn their grief into action for peace. By developing and advocating nonviolent options and actions in the pursuit of justice, the organization says its aim is to break the cycles of violence engendered by war and terrorism. By acknowledging their common experience with all people affected by violence throughout the world, these survivors of tragedy work to create a safer and more peaceful world for everyone. Carol Boss hosts the discussion with Terry Kay Rockefeller, Bruce Wallace and Anne Mulderry, all members of "9/11 Families for Peaceful Tomorrows." In addition to sharing their moving stories about that tragic day, our guests discuss their process of transforming their grief into action for peace, and describing some of their peace actions and projects.

6 p.m. Radio Theatre. "Taken: How Will They Be Remembered?" by Charles Moster with music and lyrics by Charles Moster and Adam Donmoyer. An original radio drama with music commemorating the events of September 11, 2001. Produced for KUNM's Radio Theatre by Camino Real Productions LLC and directed by Linda López McAlister. The cast includes Albuquerque actors Norma Evans, Ninette Mordaunt, Ann Beyke, Megan Kamrick, John Burgund, Emile Faith, David Denny, Jordan Garrick, Alan Hudson and Remy Rotenier.

7 p.m. KUNM's First Ever Online Town Meeting.

Dirt.com and KUNM invite you to an online / live town meeting. Using interconnected computers and what's called a branching media poll, you can take part in a unique effort to find consensus on important issues. Social issues will be the main focus. Socially responsible business practices and fair trade will be highlighted as necessary parts of the equation. The evening will be taped for possible broadcast and who knows, you might be able to influence the agenda and talking points of the political campaign that is going on right now. Pre-register on dirt.com, or just show up at the Lobo Room on the upper level of the UNM Student Union at 7:00 PM. You'll also find a link to the audio webcast at KUNM.org/listen. For more information call: Brian Rembrandt at 505-310-2673, or email rembrandt@dirty.com.

Friday, September 12

8 a.m. The Shift of Land, Part 10. This program focuses on land and how development has changed the overall culture making it difficult for people to live on the land and at times even keep their family's land. We hear a rancher whose son can't afford to take part in the 100-year-old family business as outsiders have come in, pushing up the price of land.

Saturday, September 13

6 a.m. New Dimensions. "The Sacred Story of Evolution" with Michael Dowd. It's been a long, long time since a prophet handed down a sacred revelation to humankind. But that doesn't mean God has stopped talking to us. According to Reverend Michael Dowd, God now speaks to us through science, and facts are His native tongue. With a worldview that bridges the divide between science and theology, Reverend Dowd sees each new discovery as a message from Spirit, and evolution as a beautiful unfolding of sacred creation itself. He calls that world view "evolution theology," and describes it as "a way of seeing the universe's story as sacred. When we use the word evolution, what we mean is the history of cosmos, earth, life, and humanity as one sacred story, one meaningful myth—not 'myth' as an untrue story but as a narrative that puts us in accord with the universe, or helps us feel our connection to the whole." In this provocative dialogue he demonstrates how we can see ourselves in the context of space and time—nested within the whole of the universe on a continuum of evolving species—in order to gain new understanding of our failings as well as our divinity.

Sunday, September 14

11 a.m. Sage Health On Call. "Adding More Zest and Less Stress to Your Life." Live call-in show about integrative ecological health ways for body/mind/spirit. Studio guests Sheila Key, author of 50 Ways to Leave Your 40's and Ellen Wood, author of The Secret Method for Growing Younger, will talk with Hosts Dr. Reuben Last and Halima Christy about how to maintain vitality, strength, flexibility, mental alertness and passion at any age. Sharing a wide range of skills and ideas for making major life transitions a time of opportunity, growth and celebration, both Sheila and Ellen impart an irrepressible joy that comes from learning the ongoing practice of "improving your mental outlook, even just a little!" Produced by Halima Christy

6 p.m. Radio Theatre. "Arachne" by Brian D'eon. Winner of the Mark Time Science Fiction Audio Gold Award, Arachne is a science-fiction adventure story about the first astronauts to visit Mars and who then make a stop at the asteroid Arachne just ten days before they're scheduled to return to earth--with surprising results.

Wednesday, September 17

7 p.m. Voices of the Southwest. Live from the National Hispanic Cultural Center: Medicine in the developing world. Dr. David Sklar, author of La Clinica: A Doctor's Journey Across Borders (to be released in Fall 2008).

Saturday, September 20

6 a.m. New Dimensions. "Growing Into a Bigger Version of God" with Michelle Prosser. Many of us grew up with a strong impression of God as being scary, angry, one who punishes, created hell, or one who asks us to give up our dreams. We are given images of a stern father, but not a nurturing Mother. Later in life many of us rejected the belief in God, only to replace it with an understanding of God as a creative force that got everything rolling; one who set up cosmic laws, but who is impersonal and has left us on our own. But who among us has not longed to hear God's voice, has not longed to talk with God as we once did, when we were children? Michelle Prosser encourages us to establish a personal relationship with God, using the form with which we can most easily relate. "They say in near death experiences that often people will see the God of their religion, so a Native American might see their animal guide, people often see Jesus or Mary, people who are Hindu talk about seeing Shiva, so it makes sense that God would show up in a way, in a face, that we could recognize . . . God is God, of course we can't define God . . . God is so big, so vast, so indescribable, so if it helps to make your own God form, your own God head, to have an archetype that speaks to you, and allows you to connect, do it. But do it in a way that honors yourself, and honors how incredibly precious you are in that relationship." Hosted by Justine Willis Toms.

7 p.m. Globalquerque 2008 Live from the National Hispanic Cultural Center. The second day of KUNM's live broadcast of ¡Globalquerque! New Mexico's annual celebration of world music & culture. See the Friday, September 20th listing for more details.

Sunday, September 21

11 a.m. Youth Radio. Teens and SEX. Oh my! Oh no! What DO they know? What do they NOT know? What is important to them? If you are a parent, how do you talk with your teen about the S word? If you are a teen how do you help yourself and your peers maneuver through your raging hormones, confusion, experimentation and curiosity? Join the KUNM Youth Radio Project and Inspired Leadership for a 2-part series on Teens and Sex: September 21st, 11:00 am, featuring local teens talking about teen sexuality, followed by a 7:00 pm call in show with Dr. Carol Cassell, a nationally recognized leader in the field of sexuality. Dr. Cassell is a researcher, educator, and the author of the acclaimed Swept Away: Why Women Confuse Love and Sex and Straight From the Heart: Talking to Teenagers About Love and Sex. If you have questions, now is the time to call in.

6 p.m. Radio Theatre. "Bartleby the Scrivener," by Herman Melville. The classic tale of an inscrutable copyist who nearly brings down the whole system -- by doing nothing at all. This story was written by Herman Melville in 1853, a time of self-discovery for the author and the growing city in which his story takes place. "Bartleby" was originally published anonymously in two parts in Putnam's Monthly Magazine under the title "Bartleby the Scrivener: A Story of Wall Street." It was later reprinted in 1856 in The Piazza Tales, a collection of Melville's magazine pieces. A production of Chatterbox Audio Theatre in Memphis, TN.

Wednesday, September 24

the minds of voters who are either undecided or who are set on voting for one of the other candidates. On this edition of Peace Talks Radio, host Suzanne Kryder will talk with people who have written extensively on "changing minds" as it relates to politics and other interpersonal venues. Guests include Harvard University professor Howard Gardner and David Straker of changingminds.org.

All programs in the Peace Talks Radio series can be heard online at www.peacetalksradio.com. The programs are produced by Paul Ingles for the non-profit media organization, Good Radio Shows, Inc.

6 a.m. New Dimensions. "Going Green is Not Enough" with Chuck Burr. You're doing your part. You've replaced all your incandescent light bulbs with CFLs, recycle your plastic and paper, and carpool whenever possible. But even if everyone on the planet does those things, according to Chuck Burr, it won't keep us from running out of water and food. Even when we factor in the best our green technology has to offer, at our current rate of consumption the human species will deplete our planet's ability to sustain us within a few generations. Solutions exist, but they require learning to see our relationship to the earth and her resources in a radically different way. Mr. Burr explains, "We need to indigenize the white man. We need to go from 'the earth belongs to man' to 'man belongs to the earth.' It's that simple. As long as we keep consuming, it makes programs like recycling pointless. We need to wake up regarding the limits of our bioregion, and also as a spiritual awakening." He brings us a host of intriguing ideas that will change the way you think about "being green," and at the same time offer a new understanding of this beautiful planet and our relationship to it.

6 p.m. Radio Theatre. "Super Pal: The Saving of the World: An Audio Mockumentary" and "The Jewels of the 11th Generation: An Audio Misadventure," by Brian Price and Jerry Stearns. Featuring David Ossman of The Firesign Theatre. A Great Northern Audio Theatre Production. ☺
