Did Peter Maxx and R. Crumb Ever Work At KUNM?

By Mary Oishi, KUNM Development Director

A few years back, KUNM's General Manager, Richard Towne, wanted to put lots of papers in a historical archive instead of having them clutter his office. But before he cleared them out, he tasked an ambitious and competent student employee with scanning decades worth of old Zounds into a computer and storing their aging pages on CDs. I had never seen them.

When I moved into Mary B.'s old office, I found a few photographs from past Zounds that delighted me: pictures of the Home of Happy Feet crew when they were oh, so young! Pictures of Chris Martin (remember her from Thursday Freeform?) and Henry Gonzales when they were probably still going to Deep Purple concerts. You know how it is when an old friend posts a picture from high school or college on Facebook? Yeah, sometimes it makes you laugh—or at the very least evokes a fond smile. Well that's how it was when I found those old photographs. I swear, one of them looked like Karl, Barry, and Marilyn were spoofing the Beatles' Abbey Road. It totally cracked me up!

So imagine how happy I was when Richard brought me the archival CDs of the 60's and 70's Zounds! As I was looking through them with one the student artists who helps me to produce Zounds, we were both...well, I guess I could say "squealing" as we opened each new file. The artwork was so magnificently representative of the 60's and 70's. Every issue was replete with hand-drawn art that was absolutely magnificent. Very little of it was signed, so we have no idea who these mystery artists were. But some of the cartoons were so exquisite, you would swear R. Crumb himself drew them. And some of the illustrations were so psychedelic, for lack of a better term, it would be easy to imagine Peter Maxx himself worked here.

Most of them were from the days when KUNM was broadcasting from the Student Union Building of UNM. One even included detailed instructions how to pull in the signal better by installing an antenna. It was probably directed to folks living off-campus in the "student ghetto."

It's thrilling to see how much heart was put into producing not only the radio broadcasts themselves, but the communications with the listeners too. All without the help of computers...or FAX machines...or photocopiers!

It's equally thrilling to know that, although the technology changed dramatically over the years, the students and volunteers and staff and businesses and non-profit organizations and contributing listeners who keep KUNM happening are still as engaged, as dedicated, and as full of passion for this great radio station as they have ever been. And to me that is awesome!

We (the student artists, Lydia Gosling and Genovieve Sepulveda, and me) think compiling the old Zounds into a book would be a fascinating project. Maybe we can do that for KUNM's 50th—what do you think? But for now, we made a collage of 19 of our favorites—and they are here for your enjoyment on the next 2 pages. We think it's appropriate to include them here, in the 45th Anniversary issue of Zounds! We hope you have as much fun seeing them as we did selecting them.

Happy 45th Birthday, KUNM! And may some future KUNM Development Director, some future UNM students, get a kick out of our early twenty-first century computer art 45 years from now!

THE SINGING WIRE

New Mexico has at least three cultures. Without any given one of which we are not who we are. Using a technical invention/anomaly of the twentieth century to bring you the earth-old music of American Indians, is how one makes a wire sing, communicate, and inform. From 6:00-7:30 Sundays, a wire sings so we may be whole.

If you have trouble receiving KUNM or if you have friends who have trouble receiving KUNM, you might try adding the illustrated antenna to your receiver.

A simple folded dipole antenna can be made of standard 300 Ohm twin lead as shown in Figure 1. This antenna can be placed on the rear of a large cabinet or nailed or stapled to a piece of wood to reinforce it. Keep the antenna broadcast side to the stations you wish to receive for best reception.

RADIO HIGHLIGHTS

Sunday, October 2nd

11am. RadioLab. S**rm. S**rm carry half the genes needed for human life. In this hour of Radiolab: some basic questions and profound thoughts about reproduction. To begin, why so many s**rm? We turn to the animal kingdom for answers, which lands us on a tour of s**rm battles in ducks, flying pig s**rm, and promiscuous whippoorwills. Then, we ponder fatherhood, and wonder...in a world where s**rm m can be frozen and kept for all eternity...what does the future hold for humans? And we end quietly, with a widow struggling to keep some essence of her husband alive.

6pm. Radio Theater. Song Bird (Part 1). Maureen Barnett was once a singer renowned the world over. After a nervous breakdown that leaves her petrified in front of large crowds, she's stuck performing in dives and her daughter hates her. Things have started looking up when in walks Amelia Storm, an aging chanteuse, offering Maureen the ability to see into the future. Maureen reluctantly accepts and finds herself haunted by visions of something dreadful happening to her daughter Holly, who is soon abducted and held for ransom. Enlisting the aid of Henry Powell, a freshly retired policeman-turned-private-eye, Maureen goes on a dangerous journey to get her daughter--and her confidence--back at all costs. Winning performances from Shirley Jones, Ed Asner, and Kelli O'Hara, from Radio Repertory Company of America.

Wednesday, October 5

7pm. The Blues Show. Homegrown Blues. In honor of Local Food Festival and Field Day (October 9th at the Guitierrez Hubbell House in Albuquerque's South Valley) The Blues

Liz Melendez

Show will focus on local: first, food and farming songs to salute the growing movement to grow local, buy local, and feed local. Then host Mary Oishi interviews Albuquerque's favorite homegrown daughter and blues guitarist extraordinaire, Liz Melendez, returning to her hometown from Atlanta for a concert at the El Rey on Friday, October 9th.

The guitar stylings of Liz Melendez have been compared to Santana's and Stevie Ray Vaughan's. Unknown Rockstar, a documentary movie about Liz Melendez, was partially shot in her native New Mexico. Then, another local favorite, Chava and Paid My Dues Rhythm & Blues, will perform and Mary Oishi will have a chat with lead singer and percussionist, Chava. And the show will round out with some of the best New Mexico blues bands and solo performers. Keepin' it local—keepin' it blue!!!

Friday, October 7th

8am. UNM Showcase. The Flight of Souls and Angel of Vilcabamba. Our guest is Professor David E. Stuart who will discuss two of his recent books, Flight of Souls and Angel of Vilcabamba. Listeners may remember Professor Stuart reviewing his earlier book, The Ecuador Effect. These newer books complete the fictional trilogy that takes place in Mexico, Ecuador and Colombia. Protagonist John Alexander's childhood and early experiences in Flight of Souls predate the drama of The Ecuador Effect and the trilogy is completed with Angel of Vilcabamba. These books are exciting reads any time and they provide the reader with a deeper understanding of culture and traditions in Latin America as only a gifted anthropologist such as David Stuart could describe it. He has some newer books also published by UNM Press that the readers may want peruse. Hosted by Jane Blume.

Sunday, October 9th

11am. State of the RE:Union. The Bronx - Still Rising from the Ashes. The Bronx has long been a symbol of America's failings. It's still the poorest urban congressional district in the nation, and for many who live in New York's other boroughs, the Bronx is usually a place to avoid. But despite the area's troubles, some have stayed and put down roots, intent on surviving and making their borough better. This episode looks at the hold-outs and the dreamers who've committed their lives to building community in the Bronx.

6pm. Radio Theater. Song Bird (Part 2). See October 2nd listing for details.

Friday, October 14th

8am. New Mexico People, Places & Ideas. The electric car along with wind, solar, and nuclear energy, all face a common problem: power storage. Today's guest, Abbas Akhil is the principal member of Sandia National Laboratories Battery Staff, and is one of the most knowledgeable people in the world when it comes to advanced battery technology. How and why did Japanese auto makers get the jump on the US “big three” on the electric car? Is the lithium-ion battery, the power source for your computer and cell phone, now the key to U.S. electric car success and what are its prospects? How does the rest of the world store energy produced by power-plants during off-peak hours and how advanced is power plant battery storage? And, finally, how has our government, and governments around the world, supported the drive for advanced battery technology? Please join host Stephen Spitz as we explore this key impediment to the wide adoption of green energy. Produced with the assistance of Tristan Clum.

Poland, 1797: While they prepare for Passover, a family of Jewish women klezmer musicians struggles for survival, but when music and love prove not enough, only the unthinkable can save them. Starring Tovah Feldshuh. Featuring haunting vocals and an original high energy klezmer score by Yale Strom. With a story as ancient as myth, and as modern as every family that struggles to hold its center in a world of strife and conflicting loyalties, The Witches of Lublin offers a glimpse into the lost Jewish women’s lives of Eastern Europe.

Wednesday, October 19

7pm. The Blues Show. Dia de Los Muertos Blues. Don’t worry, not all of the songs will be about bones and graveyards and death! But the ones we DO play will be some great great tunes by everyone from Rev. Gary Davis and Mississippi Fred McDowell to Mavis Staples and...well, tune in and see! We’ll also, in Day of the Dead tradition, honor and celebrate the lives of those who have crossed into the realm of Blues Ancestors, most recently Willie “Big Eyes” Smith, David “Honeyboy” Edwards, Pinetop Perkins, Robin Rodgers, and Gary Moore. Blues fans: call in your support during this show and your pledge will be taken by a representative from the New Mexico Criminal Defense Attorneys Association! #### 8am. Special Pledge Drive Version of Friday Public Affairs

Sunday, October 23rd

11am. State of the Re: Union. Mississippi Gulf Coast - Defending the Gulf. After Hurricane Katrina ravaged the area, Mississippi Gulf Coast residents were forced to come together to deal with the aftermath. Just as they were starting to get back on their feet, the BP Deepwater Horizon disaster resulted in millions of barrels of oil being dumped into the water just off their shores. These events have made environmentalists out of a lot of Gulf Coast residents who would never have considered themselves as such. We tell an hour of stories about how the fight for the natural world is bringing Gulf Coast residents together, sometimes with unlikely partners, and how, in some instances, that fight is turning out to be exactly what a community needed to survive.

6pm. Radio Theater. The Shepherd of Clouds. The hapless Giles stumbles onto the home of the Shepherd of Clouds, who is responsible for creating and controlling the weather. The powerful Shepherd decides to keep Giles as his servant. Will Giles be able to escape in time to save his wife and his village from an invading army? From Chatterbox Audio Theatre. And, Fall of the Hero: Sir Grace was the most valiant of all knights, decked in glorious armor that glowed in the sun. He had an unparalleled record of dragon-slaying and maiden saving. But a battle with a renowned wizard with ambiguous ambitions forces Sir Grace to consider things he never imagined, and face his greatest enemy yet: himself. 8am. Peace Talks Radio:

The series on peacemaking and nonviolent conflict resolution. Over recent centuries, how have classical music composers responded to the scourge of war and the hope for peace? Listen as music historian and musician Jane Ellen brings to us stories of Ludwig Von Beethoven, Ralph Vaughan Williams, Benjamin Britten, Michael Tippett, George Crumb and Karl Jenkins. The hour-long version of our program, which includes all of these composers, is available to hear at atpeacetalksradio.com. In this half-hour version for KUNM, we'll sample excerpts from a few of the ones on Jane Ellen's list whose works dealt with war and peace. Paul Ingles hosts.

Sunday, October 30th

11am. State of the Re: Union. Wyoming - The New Old West. Wyoming is the least populated state in the US. In this sparsely populated landscape where private property and self-sufficiency are prized, community is built on the (somewhat unwelcome) expectation that distant neighbors might need to rely on one another one day. When people come together here, they have to have good reason to. This episode will bring listeners to the towns of Laramie, Cheyenne and the surrounding landscape in Southern Wyoming, looking at how the things that happen in the small towns and countryside of rural America can change the country as a whole.

6pm. Radio Theater. Halloween Show 2010 from Chatterbox Audio Theatre. Chatterbox's third annual Halloween performance This terrifying production features five original tales of horror, all performed and broadcast live on 91.1 WKNO FM in Memphis.

Sunday Specials for November:

Hear the last two episodes of the Fall season of State of the Re: Union

Sunday, November 6th

11am. Cleveland - The Way Forward. From Rockefeller's Standard Oil to GE's first industrial park, Cleveland was a city made by entrepreneurs. But since the polluted Cuyahoga River caught fire in 1969, it's been trying to shake the moniker of "the mistake on the lake." Today Cleveland is being embraced by a new generation of entrepreneurs who are using their business sense to try and revitalize neighborhoods, clean up the environment and improve education.

Sunday, November 13th

11am. Sacramento - All Hands on Deck. A company town, where the company is government. In a city where one in four households contain a government employee, the crippling state budget deficit, police layoffs, fire engine brown-outs and park closures could easily signal only the bleakest of futures. This is a town where, through sheer force of will, residents and an enthusiastic mayor are keeping their major league basketball team around for another year. Despite the recession gloom, the numbers of chronically homeless people on the streets actually went down this past year. Residents are volunteering to maintain city parks when the Parks & Recreation budget is slashed. And people are figuring out ways — from clothing swaps to home shares — to deal with the hard new economic reality.
