Cost to Purchase Programs on KUNM

By Richard S. Towne, KUNM General Manager

(Most prices kick in on October 1, 2016 – at the start of the federal fiscal year).

Compiled by Richard S. Towne, General Manager and Tristan Clum, Program Director.

Costs are for program acquisition only. These costs do not include any of the actual broadcast costs paid by KUNM to bring you these programs. KUNM programs are funded by individual donations from our listeners, with help from non-profit and for-profit businesses who contribute to KUNM. The overall price decrease (last year to this year) is -1.5%.

Notes: Some program prices vary from year to year based on the number of listeners (Nielsen Audio, Inc.) and the total amount of revenue KUNM is able to produce in a given year.

One of the attendees at my daughter’s wedding reception came up and introduced herself. She said she listens to KUNM all the time and she gives to KUNM because I ask. Apparently she appreciates the invitation to help.

For me it is noble to ask for help to keep KUNM on the air, because I know what a resource KUNM is for the people and communities of New Mexico, and for those who want to stay in touch with New Mexico. And because I think it’s a rare and beautiful thing that listeners throughout our listening area (and internet listeners in other states) value what KUNM brings to their lives: enough to offer some support in return.

Listeners have always provided more than half of what it takes to keep KUNM alive. We have been “grassroots crowdsourcing” for decades. It’s wonderfully (small “d”) democratic.

So when you hear us go on the air to ask people to support the station, please don’t be annoyed. We’re trying to get more people to join you in support. We know many will listen their entire lives and never send us a contribution. Some absolutely can’t. They’re barely making it from week to week. But many who can afford to give something just don’t respond, procrastinating—or perhaps assuming someone else will help us to pay the bills.

We’re trying to convince them. Because we want to bring you as much help as possible to keep this station humming year-round, with thoughtfully gathered and presented news, interesting and useful information, and music that is carefully curated by musicians (for example, the wonderful trumpet player, Paul Gonzales—Monday All That Jazz) and people who really know and love the genre (that’s EVERY KUNM DJ).

So that you can listen through the October fundraiser completely guilt and annoyance-free, the International Folk Art Market Santa Fe donated three stunning folk art pieces that we will be giving away on Friday, October 16th, the day before the on-air portion of our Fall FUNdraiser starts. Everyone who saw the prizes in person at Globalquerque remarked how much more amazing they are in person. The embroidery on the scarf is intricate and gorgeous, the Haitian metal sculpture is a large and impressive 36” wide by 35” tall, and the South African basket is beautifully woven to enhance any décor.

Winners will be chosen from among just the folks who, prior to 5 pm MT on Friday, October 16, renew their membership or send us an extra gift by mail or on-line, Radio Frequency Club members who return their postcard and ask to be in the drawing, and those who contact us at prizes@kunm.org to register. It will be a relatively small pool compared to when we give prizes away after the on-air portion of the drive. That swells the numbers by as many as 1500 people! So be sure to get in on it! Then answer your phone Friday night (October 16th) if you see a call from the University of New Mexico. It will be me, saying, “This is Mary Oishi from KUNM.” I’ll only call you if you are one of the 3 winners. ¡Buena suerte! Good luck!

See prizes on page 9.
One of the great things about working for our Public Health New Mexico reporting project is I get to see firsthand how different we are from other news outlets in the state.

While most organizations have left the Gold King mine spill behind, reporter Marisa Demarco kept following the spill and told the story of those on the Navajo Nation that have kept the water off due to fears of long-term contamination from the spill. She then followed up by reporting on what many are doing to help, including shuttling water from other parts of the state, and installing drip irrigation systems.

Ed Williams broke an important story about a toxic plume larger than the Kirtland spill that has been flying under the radar for years. Near downtown, dry cleaning chemicals contaminate the groundwater for miles, and many businesses and residents in the area were never told about it.

Ed also reported on a partnership between CNM and UNM to increase the number of nurses in New Mexico and address the state’s chronic nursing shortage. He also highlighted new analysis by the state that shows New Mexico’s teen suicide attempts are down 35 percent over the decade between 2003 and 2013.

Coming up, keep your ears open for an in-depth look at healthcare in jails, reporting on sexual assault at UNM, and more!

Thanks for tuning in! For all of our public health reporting, including web exclusives, photos, and extended interviews, check out our project website www.publichealthnm.org

Reveal

Reveal. There’s more to the story... Reveal is the Peabody Award-winning investigative journalism program for public radio. We’ve heard the news, but we want to know what really happened. That’s what Reveal is all about: finding out what’s going on behind the scenes, hidden from public view. Produced by The Center for Investigative Reporting and PRX, Reveal presents original work from CIR’s team along with various partners: stations, producers, web sites, journalism centers and reporters from around the world.

6:00 p.m.
Radio Theatre: “Mother and Son” two plays by Daniel Reitz and David Cale

Two short plays. Napoleon in Exile by Daniel Reitz, features Jane Kaczmarek and is directed by four-time Academy Award Nominee, and two-time Golden Globe-winning actress Marsha Mason. Kaczmarek stars as a single mother having a funny but exasperating conversation with her young adult son, played by Will Dagger, who has ASD (Autism Spectrum Disorder). Elizabeth, by David Cale, features James Lecesne, the energetic and multi-talented creator of the Academy Award winning Trevor, as both mother and son in a play about a son moving back home after his divorce.

New Dimensions: “The Practice of Settlement, Finding a Sense of Place” with John Lane

Lane drew a circle on a map that represented a one-mile radius from his home, and explored every facet of the place including the topography, history, ancient and current citizenry, and industry. This exploration sharpened his sense of place, and serves as a model for how we might look at our own homes, terrain, and communities. John Lane is the author of Circling Home.

Immigration Uncovered: Untold Stories of Moving North

The United States has always been a beacon for those searching for safe haven, for a place to build a better life. Though the barriers are high, and the odds are stacked against them, hundreds of thousands of people leave their homes in Mexico, Honduras and other Central American countries and head for the U.S.

Immigration Uncovered: Untold Stories of Moving North flies close to the ground, bringing you personal stories — sometimes uplifting, sometimes heartbreaking, but always surprising — of people crossing borders, encountering new cultures, and building new lives in a new land.
6:00 p.m.
Radio Theatre: “D&D Planners” by Yolanda Day

D&D Planners takes a lighthearted look at breaking up. (D&D stands for dumping and divorce!) Although Neil Sedaka thought Breaking Up Was Hard to Do, he didn’t have the staff of D&D Planners on his side! They’ll make any break-up an affair to remember, complete with champagne toasts and strutting Chippendales. Written and directed by Yolanda Day, recorded live in the KUNM studio, D&D Planners is performed by Albuquerque’s Rio Grande Players.

The Science behind Smart

Until recently, we didn’t know much about the best ways to learn. Now that’s changing. Over recent decades, experts working in cognitive science, psychology, and neuroscience have opened new windows into how the brain works, and how we can learn to learn better. In this American RadioWorks program, we look at some of the big ideas coming out of brain science. We meet the researchers who are unlocking the secrets of how the brain acquires and holds on to knowledge. And we introduce listeners to the teachers and students who are trying to apply that knowledge in the real world.

Radio Theatre: “Remembering Leonard Nimoy: War of the Worlds”

In honor of the incomparable Leonard Nimoy, we present an encore broadcast of War of the Worlds. Join cast members from Star Trek and Star Trek: The Next Generation as they recreate the broadcast that panicked America, adapted from the H.G. Wells story by Howard Koch. Originally performed by Orson Welles and his Mercury Theatre of the Air, War Of The Worlds offers a rare combination of chills, thrills and great literature. The broadcast includes a conversation with Leonard Nimoy, recorded after a performance of War of the Worlds. From LA Theatre Works.

The Day Meat Fell from the Sky: A Halloween Special

This week, for Halloween, we’re bringing you a scary story. On March 3rd, 1876, large chunks of red meat fell from the sky for a period of several minutes, covering land the size of a football field near Olympia Springs, Kentucky. The cause of the Kentucky Meat Shower remains a mystery to this day, so we’ll speak to experts and scientists to find out what could have caused this strange historical event. We’ll find out all about wine savers from gadget guru Lisa McManus, and we’ll speak with food writer Adam Gopnik about scary foods. Then we’ll head into the test kitchen to learn how to make perfect cherry crisp in a skilllet. And of course, we’ll be taking your calls to answer all of your cooking questions.

Radio Theatre: “ROT” by Julie Hendren

A radio adaptation of Juli Hendren’s ROT. A one-woman comic performance about a woman who channels the spirit of Frankenstein author Mary Shelley to help her face the challenges of turning 30. Elizabeth, a writer suffering from an impending birthday, heartache from countless failed relationships, regret, a devoted but nagging mother, and writer’s block. Searching for her muse, Elizabeth finds and channels the immortal gothic writer, Mary Shelley, only to unleash her own monster. Shelley’s creation of Frankenstein mirrors the monster within the written page and everyday life of Elizabeth. Join Elizabeth in the “lab” of Los Angeles, where she discovers that the monster she created has faithfully followed her. As she watches the events of Mary Shelley’s life unfold, Elizabeth is left to unravel the mystery behind her own monster’s conception. ROT features songs by Ugly Casanova, Paul Simon, Joy Division, Tom Petty, Jani Ian, Ryan Adams, Townes Van Zandt, Johnny Cash and Warren Zevon. Written and Performed by Juli Hendren. Directed by Byron Laurie and Elsa Menendez. Sound Design by Paul Ingles.

Peace Talks Radio

Among our guests this month, Natalie Ralph, of Corporate Peacebuilders, author of a book that addresses a significant gap in international research on companies’ political/diplomatic role in peace processes in intrastate conflict-termed Corporate Peacemaking. It focuses on transnational corporations, specifically in the oil and mining sectors, supporting or actively participating in peace negotiations and mediation. It not only explores national-level peace processes, but those at community and global levels. While the focus is on oil and mining companies, most industries can apply this book’s ideas to their business. Suzanne Kryder hosts with Paul Ingles.
