Our 96 Volunteers are a valuable part of the “community” in “New Mexico’s Community Powered Public Radio.”

Thank You
By Richard S. Towne, KUNM General Manager

December brought a lot of changes for the good folks working at KUNM. With 21 full-time professionals, two half-time employees, a handful of part-time employees, 13 student employees and nearly 100 community volunteers, change is to be expected, even embraced. December was more than just turning the last page on the calendar.

We had 4 of our 13 UNM student employees graduate in December.

Samuel Kerwin has been creating the cover art and layout work for Zounds! for many months, including this month’s fantastic cover. The cover art is similar to what we are thinking of for our 50th anniversary T-shirt this year. I’ve heard a lot of appreciation from our readers for the brilliance of Sam’s work. Sam’s degree is a double – Journalism and American Studies. He even managed to run for Albuquerque City Council his senior year!

Joe DeBonis also graduated with a degree in Communications. Joe worked with other UNM students to successfully launch and build our social media outreach to UNM students known as KUNM Generation Listen. On the social media side of KUNM, Joe worked with fellow students to organize topical meet-ups of UNM students in our studios to discuss important current topics. Good going, Joe! Don’t be a stranger.

Derrick Toledo just started working at KUNM and now he has gone and graduated as well, with a degree in Multimedia Journalism and a minor in Marketing Management. While at KUNM, Derrick was assigned to work with New Mexico News Post, the award-winning online journalism lab at UNM’s Department of Communications and Journalism.

Eli Willard also graduated in December. Eli started volunteering at KUNM when he was in high school – likely as a service project requirement. He just wanted to learn how it all works here at KUNM. No wonder -- his degree is in Mechanical Engineering! Over the years, Eli became a real master in KUNM’s recording studio and in the massively intricate art of building a live, multi-track, broadcast field recording studio: think Globalquerque or the Summerfest broadcasts from Central Avenue. We plan to keep Eli on board for those special occasions.

So, if you are looking for fresh talent, look no further than here. I can fully recommend each of these UNM alums.
By Mary Oishi, Development Director

When a young, shy Carol Boss took a broadcast operators’ training class with Benjamin Shapiro at KUNM, she did so to fulfill a secret childhood fantasy to be on the radio.

It wasn’t her first fantasy.

Carol grew up in New York City, where her mother and aunts went to Broadway shows, and many Broadway tunes were played in her home. “I can’t sing or dance but I fantasized being on Broadway.” They also listened to a lot of radio. Since Broadway was out of the question, her second fantasy was to be on the radio.

When a volunteer asked the broadcast operators’ training class, “Who’s ready to go on the air?” her hand shot up. She went for it, even though she was scared to death. “What have I done?!?” she thought afterward. At first, she hosted overnight Freeform. Eventually she got a daytime Freeform shift, and began co-hosting Women’s Focus with Chris Martin. Carol continues to host Freeform on Wednesdays from 1:30 pm to 4 pm, and Women’s Focus one or two Saturdays per month.

She also hosted a few episodes of Peace Talks each year for the past ten years.

Her favorite part of doing radio is interviewing people. She loves interviewing writers, poets, and community activists. Some of her more memorable interviews include with poet Naomi Shihab Nye, Terry Tempest Williams (right after she wrote Refuge: An Unnatural History of Family and Place), and Sister Helen Prejean, leading activist for abolition of the death penalty and author of Dead Man Walking.

“I love the whole idea of giving people voice. I’m talking about community and artists and activists: I like to explore the relationship between creativity and social action.”

In 2008, Carol joined KUNM’s professional staff as Membership Coordinator. After nearly eight years of dedicated service, her retirement date is January 1, 2016. Again, what she loved the most about the job has been connecting with community, especially during the semi-annual pledge drives when hundreds of volunteers from the community come in to help answer phones. “That’s the beautiful part of public radio,” she says.

Carol will continue as a volunteer program host, doing Freeform and Women’s Focus, including the segment she created which she dubs “Revolutionary Soup.” She also looks forward to, in her words, “re-discovering myself—and engaging in creative adventures.”

Please join me in wishing her well during her re-discovery. And if you have any creatively adventurous ideas, be sure to get in touch with her!

Chanda Shaw has deep roots in New Mexico. Her great-grandmother, Nellie Guevara, was a school teacher in Southern New Mexico.

Chanda joined KUNM’s staff while working on completing her Bachelor’s degree as a non-traditional student. She came with a strong sales background and a great attitude. In short order she built the support for KUNM from non-profit organizations to record highs.

Her email sign offs are “Cheerfully, Chanda” and that’s exactly how she is! It makes for great customer service as well as staff morale. She’s the one who organizes Halloween parties and Ugly Sweater Day and generally spreads good cheer.

Happy holidays from the Public Health New Mexico news team! Wow, 2015 was a tremendous year—winning Station of the Year, broadcasting more stories than we ever have before, and doing important investigative reporting across the entire spectrum of public health and poverty issues. A big thanks to our funders, the WK Kellogg Foundation, and starting in January, the Con Alma Health Foundation. You make this work possible!

In the wake of the San Bernardino, California shootings, Marisa Demarco reported on a church vigil for victims of the fatal mass shooting at Planned Parenthood in Colorado Springs, Colorado. She highlighted the healing space created by the event. Marisa also covered the National Institute of Health's decision to no longer fund chimpanzee research, and the ethical and human health impacts of that shift, and reported on a local program that provides support for fathers exiting incarceration to reconnect with their families, and find housing and jobs.

Ed Williams filed an Inspection of Public Records Act request with the New Mexico Environment Department and discovered that a company responsible for a toxic chemical spill in downtown Albuquerque exposed their workers to high levels of hazardous gases.

News Director Elaine Baumgartel hosted a call-in show that delved into the heart of gun violence, looking at expert suggestions that would actually make a difference in reducing or preventing mass shootings.

Ahead in the New Year, look for a deep dive into the controversy over the Supreme Court’s new evidence rules for Bernalillo County, reporting on air quality and health, and much more.

Recently, our successful veteran Underwriting Manager, Linda Rodeck, announced her pending retirement. We posted for her replacement, and Chanda applied. In December, it was decided that she was the most qualified candidate.

Please join us in congratulating Chanda and wishing her continued success in her new capacity. Toward a creative and cheerful future for KUNM and all of our staff and volunteers—past and present, Mary. 😊

New Mexico’s 2016 30-day Legislative Session: Will the Republicans dominate?

Our 30-day legislative session begins this month with Republicans having the upper hand, namely a Republican Governor, a Republican House, and Democrats holding a shaky majority in the Senate. So will the 2016 Session have a decidedly Republican outcome? Host Stephen Spitz will put this question to Joe Monahan, the author of the State’s go-to political blog, New Mexico Politics with Joe Monahan.

Under discussion will be all major budget items, along with specific legislation, including: 1) a proposed Constitutional Amendment which would distribute 1.5% of New Mexico’s $15 billion Permanent Fund to early childhood programs; 2) retention of 3rd Graders not reading at grade level; 3) repeal of drivers licenses for undocumented workers; and 4) anti-crime legislation permitting dangerous defendants to be held without bail and easing timelines for prosecuting cases in Bernalillo County. Produced with assistance of Jefferson White and Lynn Schibeci.

IQ2US Debate: Does the equal protection clause forbid racial preferences in state university admissions?

The Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution provides that: “No State shall ... deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.” Yet many state universities give substantial preferences to certain races in their admissions decisions. One side may argue that these preferences level the playing field, remedy prior discrimination, and enhance diversity within the classroom, thus redeeming the true promise of equal protection. But the other may say that these preferences – in favor of some races, at the expense of others – are racial discrimination pure and simple, the precise evil that the Equal Protection Clause was intended to forbid.

Well Women Radio

This month, host Giovanna Rossi speaks with Saralyn Mark, president of Solamed Solutions, author, sex and gender medicine expert, and former Senior Policy Advisor to the White House Office of Science and Technology. They’ll talk about the bikini medicine model, meditating, and charting your own course. Her book is called Stellar Medicine: A Journey Through The Universe of Women's Health.

Saturday, January 9
6:00 a.m.
New Dimensions: “Surrender is the Doorway” with Judith Orloff, M.D.

Physician Judith Orloff says the most important factor in health and well-being is surrender. She clarifies that surrender must be the engine that drives all choices and aspects of our life and points out that this doesn’t mean giving up or giving in. However, we must learn to bend like the willow in life’s highs and lows. She’s the author of The Ecstasy of Surrender.

IQ2US Debate: Should college students be allowed to take ‘smart drugs’?

If you could take a pill that would help you study and get better grades, would you? Off-label use of pharmaceuticals (“smart drugs”) are becoming increasingly popular among college students. Should their use as cognitive enhancers be approved by the FDA, the medical community, and society at large?

6:00 p.m.
Radio Theatre: Teenagers: The Agony and the Ecstasy - Two short plays by Christopher Sullivan

Two short plays by up-and-coming playwright Christopher Sullivan. Take radars, magnetrons, and dielectric heating; add two teenagers; mix and get lots of heat in this funny short about a teenage first date. “Bounce With Me! We’re Being Heated!” features Lucy DeVito and Christopher Sullivan in a performance role.

In “Carry The Zero,” sex, peer pressure, and so-called friends add up to questionable teenage choices in this moving short. It features David Gelles and Arielle Goldman. Both short plays are directed by John Giampietro. After each play, playwright, director, and cast converse with Claudia Catania.

Saturday, January 16
6:00 a.m.
New Dimensions: “From Religiosity to Spirituality” with Father Matthew Fox, Ph.D.

Fox’s spiritual enthusiasm has taken him beyond the dogma of the Catholic Church, and for this he’s been censored by the Vatican and ultimately expelled from the order of the Dominicans. However, this has not stilled his voice for a mystical theology that speaks to the heart of seekers of a numinous sacred experience. Author of: Confessions: The Making of a Post-Denominational Priest.

Sunday, January 17
11:00 a.m.
IQ2US Debate: Do U.S. prosecutors have too much power?

Autonomy and secrecy, complex criminal code and mandatory minimums: in combination, these factors have given prosecutors enormous leverage, and the opportunity to wield it relentlessly and selectively. Do prosecutors have too much power?
6:00 p.m.
Radio Theatre: Oedipus the King

Sophocles’ “Oedipus the King” is widely considered to be the greatest tragedy ever written, in a production starring Gregory Itzin. From LA Theatre Works.

Saturday, January 23
6:00 a.m.
New Dimensions: “A Heroine’s Journey with Authentic Indigious Healers” with Marie-Rose Phan-Lé

The legacy of authentic indigenous healing practices and traditional shamanism is disappearing. Marie-Rose Phan-Lé is doing her part to preserve this precious human resource, which has gifts to give humankind in these challenging times. She has traveled the world seeking healers who have been trained in some of the most ancient healing traditions on the planet. She’s the author and filmmaker of Talking Story: One Woman’s Quest to Preserve Ancient Spiritual and Healing Traditions.
